A HAVEMEYER IS SOLD OUT.

He Lets His Philadelphia Office Rent Run Four Months.

Make-Up of a Fortune.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.-The Times this porning prints the story of the selling out, for arrears of rent amounting to $140, of all effects of Charles W. Havemeyer son of the millionaire President of the Havemeyer Sugar Rennery, of New York, and a stockholder of the National Bank of North merica, of New York, of which his father is

The offices were on the third floor of the Sibley Building at 1218-20 Filbert street. The rental was $420 per annum and it was stipulated in the lease that $35 should b paid in advance on the first of each month The offices were handsomely furnished, but Mr. Havemeyer used them only at intervals He conducted most of his correspondence there and kept in his deaks all his private papers, many of them very valuable.

The rooms also contained a number of strange articles of recent invention, which Mr. Havemeyer had purchased with the idea of investment, and boxes containing souvent jewelry, trinkets of all sorts and old coins, lection of which seems to have been a

The sale took place on Wednesday after

One of the purchasers was a young man named Hilliard, who occupied an office on the fifth floor of the building, dignified by the sign "Hilliard Cyclometer Co." Mr. Hilliard purchased for 25 cents a newly patented and exceedingly intricate pool rack, upon which $1,000 had been spent. He also bought for $2 a patent gate opener, for which the costs of building and experimenting had amounted to $2,000. For $10 he purchased Mr. Have-pacer's large desk.

to $2,000. For $10 he purchased Mr. Have-meyer's large desk.

The various articles were transferred to his own office yesterday morning, and Mr. Hilliard's first step was to break open the the house of the same and to water the norses at the trough by the curb.

The Press says it did not take long for a number of children to gather and look in wonder at the unaccustomed sight. Superstition kept them at a distance for a white, but curiosity conquered fear, and one boy finally plucked up courage enough to peep into the back of the waren.

one boy finally plucked up course enough to peep into the back of the wagon.

He did not see very much, only the woman who had attended the horses, a lark-eyed, black-haired young girl and two dirty, olive-hued little boys, who were quarrelling over a small kitten.

Besides these there were a roll of dirty carvas, evidently used as a tent, a few pots and tin pans and a number of blankets. The boy retired to the pavement with a look of intense diagust on his face. These specimens were not his ideal of gypsies.

Pifteen minutes passed and the chief had not returned from the saloon where noises of laughter and shouting could be heard at intervals.

The woman in the wagon was becoming impatient and came to the front of the vehicle every few moments and cast angry glances towards the saloon.

Soon the wife's patience became exhausted, and she descended from the wagon and entered the saloon with a determined step. In two minutes she reappeared, dragging her lausband along by the collar of his coat. She dragged him across the pavement and, by an almost superhuman effort, into the wagon.

He was tumbled over the front seat and left lying where he fell to recover his senses. The woman was then master of affairs. She ordered the young girl to drive the wagon and she herself straddled the gray mag, and the train moved of down the street, followed by a crowd of shouting boys.

cloth cap. As soon as this was done he was known as a libertinus or freedman, and his name was registered among others of the city's "tribes."

In the year 263, when Saturninus invaded the capital, says the New Orleans Picayane, he hoisted a cap on the point of his spear, to indicate that all slaves who rallied around this standard should be free. This was the origin of the liberty cap, still used in art as a symbol.

[From Texas Siftings.] "I wish I could strike some plan by which could double my circulation," remarked

"There are several ways by which that can be accomplished," replied a friend.
"Name them."
"Well, get married. Then two bearts will beat as one and consequently you'll have doubled your circulation.

NO NEWSPAPER has ever printed a more meritorious feature than that announced for the SUNDAY WORLD next.

The first voyage of Columbus, as described by WASHINGTON IRVING in his "Life and Voyages of Columbus," is a narrative of real and timely interest and historic value.

The Art Supplement, printed on finely finished paper, bearing several authenticated likenesses of Columbus, drawn by Gribayedoff, is fully worthy of the narrative which it accompanies.
